Mayor's Message

City Newsletter

September 2006 Edition

Often we hear of what's wrong in our city. There will always be something that needs to be fixed, needs to be replaced, or needs to be changed. And we will certainly read about those items because that's what is usually carried in the newspapers, discussed with neighbors or brought up in meetings. Today I want to draw your attention to those many individuals, even neighbors of yours, who are solving the problems we face in our community.

Although you may not be aware, our neighbors make many decisions and commitments that affect our community for the better. I think its time to shed some light on the people in our community that are quietly but significantly making personal sacrifices to improve our community. I cannot disclose names. Some have asked to remain anonymous; others would be embarrassed to have their efforts known. But you should know that your neighbors are making our community better.

Putting the Community Interests First

Years ago I met first hand with individuals who could have cost the city hundreds of thousands of dollars when the city decided to put the sewer in. In every case when the city needed to obtain an easement to run sewer lines through a citizen's private property, the citizen gave the easement freely. At other times property owners have deeded some of their property to widen roads or install sidewalks to make the community safer. Over the years, many of our neighbors have allowed their private property to be used for our community's benefit and safety. Without their commitment to help our community, we would all be paying higher taxes, or we would make do with substandard services and less safety.

Dedicating Time and Labor

The dedication of our citizens is measured in the thousands of hours volunteered by our neighbors. Contractors in our city donate time and labor. Some donated their labor to build the new City Building, others spent hours and days excavating and earthmoving to protect and clean up after floods.

Volunteers dedicate hundreds of hours to qualify, train and serve as ambulance and fire personnel. Citizens spend hours each week to preserve our museum or to teach others to read, play ball, sew, quilt or sing. For many years our local youth and adults have worked side-by-side donating labor to benefit us all. Each year dedicated people volunteer to work hard to help us remember and celebrate the 24th of July. This year, even a fireworks show was donated for our benefit. Our youth gave up some of their vacation time this summer to bring free movies and programs to our children. Our neighbors dedicate hours to provide us with musical, entertainment and sports programs. Young men and women worked hard outside in the rain to beautify the city center. Not unlike a group of neighbors who gather to help clear a field or lay sod, in our city there is a strong sense of commitment to our community, where many are willing to help.

In this limited space, I have only scratched the surface of those who have gone out of their way to improve our community. Many have donated significant amounts of money or books to provide a library, conference tables and chairs, electronic supplies and computer services. To all who help when help is needed I say thank you. Although talk is cheap, those who work to "get it done" are invaluable.

Public Safety

Safety Concerns

School has now commenced and with the recent opening of the new Mapleton Jr. High School opening, there has been increased traffic on 1200 North and Main Street. We ask that you slow down and watch for children in the area that will be walking or riding their bicycles to school. We will have officers to help with traffic control around the Jr. High School and the other two schools. Lets all continue to make Mapleton a safe place to live.

Library

Thank You

The Friends of the Mapleton Library would like to thank everyone who contributed to the Summer Reading Program. With the help of many volunteers and donations, more than 130 children successfully completed the program. This year's donations came from David Nemelka, McDonald's, Wendy's, Sonic, and Clyde Co. Building Supplies.

A special thanks goes to Kristin Holmes for coordinating this summer's program. Finally, thank you to all the children who came and participated. We hope you keep reading.

Heritage Trees

By Orpha Dee Johnson

On April 29, 1983 Mapleton launched an ambitious urban forestry project by sponsoring the largest Arbor Day Program reported in the State of Utah. These meetings marked the beginning of our on-going tree planting and care in the city. Descendents of early Union Bench Pioneers were honored that day, and two silver maple trees were designated as "Heritage Trees". They were planted as part of a grove around the first meeting house, and still remain standing today on the east side of the building. Sometimes in the hot summer outdoor meetings were held under these trees. Six trees were planted on North Main Street to honor early pioneers who helped clear the land and establish Union Bench, known today as Mapleton. They are Steven C. Perry, Philo Dibble, Olive Amanda Fulmer, William Mendenhall, Richard Bird, and Edwin Whiting. The following poem was composed for the celebration by Elaine Bird Parcel and her daughter Joan Ashton, who lives in Mapleton today. We will be informing our citizens about more "Heritage Trees" in future issues of our Mapleton Newsletter.

"Heritage Trees"

*"Seeds carried far by our pioneer fathers,
Planted in earth and left to survive;
Now grown old in the service of others
Giving comfort and shade all through their lives.
Who can count the hours of children content here?
Who tumbled and teased under blue skies and grey.
Who can know the enjoyment of folks as they gathered?
Under these lofty green branches to talk or to pray.
Our lives each may end; as they must soon enough;
But these sturdy; tall trees in their calm; caring ways
Will remain to remind us of old cherished days"*

The Lewis M. and Lizzie Gillilan Home
2010 East 400 North
Mapleton, Utah

This home was constructed from approximately in 1890-1900. Mr. Lewis Perry freighted brick from Provo for the outside walls of the house. It had three rooms on the ground floor, three rooms upstairs, and a basement. The house was heated with a kitchen stove. It had lath and plaster on the inside walls. Later Max Roundy, put paneling on them. Mr. Gillilan also constructed a barn and lean-to and raised jersey cows. He sold forty acres to his daughter - then hard times came along and he lost the eighty acres that were left. There was an abundant crop of cherries that year and some lawyers bought the place and made a big profit. They turned around and sold it again. About 1937 Max Roundy's father and mother, Ammon Lorenzo and Elizabeth Roundy, fell in love with the place and wanted to buy it. A son, who was working away from home at the time, furnished a down-payment of $400 and the family bought the place for $6,000. Mr. Roundy named the place "A.L. Roundy & Sons". When Max was a child growing up in the home with his mother and dad and family, there was no heat upstairs; so his mom gave him a flatiron to warm his bed. The stove was near the door in the kitchen. In 1957 Max bought the place from his mother for $10,000. A coal furnace was installed in the house some years ago. The renters felt that it wasn't heating adequately and so Max had a gas furnace put in. To this day the house is in use.
